As many as 300 educators and technology experts will descend on MHS in October for the inaugural EdTechTeam Connecticut Summit featuring Google for Education. This high-intensity event, which is Oct 17-19, focuses on deploying, integrating and using Google Apps for Education to promote student learning in K-12 and higher education. The program features Google Certified Teachers, Google Apps for Education Certified Trainers, practicing administrators, solution providers, Google engineers, and representatives from the Google Apps for Education team.

“We are thrilled to be hosting the Summit,” said Matt Geary, noting that MHS has been a Google Apps for Education School since the beginning of the 2013-2014 school year and that students and staff have all received Chromebooks. “We are confident this event will help those of us here at MHS — and educators throughout the region — to learn to use technology more effectively and in ways that will boost student achievement and engagement.”
